

Nominee For Board of Directors. 2022

Judith Mosley is a heritage consultant based in Vancouver. She has a BA in History from the University of Cambridge and an MSc in Conservation of Historic Buildings from the University of Bath, UK. From 2013 until 2021, she was Executive Director of Vancouver Heritage Foundation, advancing the organization’s mandate to promote the appreciation and conservation of heritage places in the city through educational programming, online information resources and granting. New initiatives included a homeowner’s guide to building code requirements, award-winning grant programs and interactive web resources, and innovative virtual events during the coronavirus pandemic. Judith is a member of the Canadian Association of Heritage Professionals and has served on grant juries for Heritage BC. She also has a background in marketing and communications, with sixteen years of business experience in management roles with leading companies in the UK and Canada, and as a consultant. Judith has lived in Vancouver for over two decades and enjoys exploring the diverse communities, landscapes and history of British Columbia.
